Excerpts from a conversation with Scott Godden, Vice President, ConsensioHealth

Scott Godden joined ConsensioHealth in 2015 after 20+ years in healthcare, most notably 12 years at Children's Hospital of Milwaukee, WI. While Scott's experience at Children's Hospital was rewarding, he realized that he wanted to have the opportunity to more directly impact the patient experience. With ConsensioHealth, Scott found great synergy with this group of passionate physicians who pride themselves on their practical and extensive knowledge of the business side of independent Emergency Medicine. ConsensioHealth has a suite of services for physicians that improve their practice's performance, both clinically and financially. ConsensioHealth takes care of the business side of the operation by allowing physicians to do what they do best - provide top-notch patient care. ConsensioHealth is proud of their Advanced Analytics tool, SensER, that drives optimization by connecting financial, provider performance, and clinical performance data streams. The firm is committed to managing the revenue cycle to ensure prompt payment and professional recovery, treating all patients with the utmost respect. It offers patient-friendly statements with payment options and solutions, helping patients navigate the complexities of changing healthcare and insurance billing trends.

Mr. Godden was interested in joining EDPMA as he recognized the importance of being part of an association supporting independent physician groups. He values the advocacy work undertaken by EDPMA and believes the collaborative voices make a difference. Scott has found that members are willing to share their "pain points" and work in a non-competitive manner to find common ground.

Scott is looking forward to attending the Solutions Summit (4/25-4/28) in San Diego and wants to learn more about EDPMA's committees on Committee Day to see which one would best fit with his expertise and capabilities.
